Tom Butler Joins Digbee ESG Panel

Digbee is pleased to announce the appointment of Tom Butler onto the Digbee ESG Advisory Panel. Tom was CEO of International Council on Mining & Metals (ICMM) until his retirement in April and prior to this was Global Head of Mining at IFC.

Tom joins existing members, Elaine Dorward King (previously Executive Vice President Sustainability and External Relations, Newmont Mining Corp.) and Rich Borden (previously Copper & Diamonds General Manager Environment, Rio Tinto) on our ESG Advisory Panel.

Tom Butler comments “I am delighted to be joining Digbee's ESG Advisory Panel. As investors and end consumers increasingly focus on ESG issues, the time is right for a comprehensive disclosure framework through which companies will be able to demonstrate how they think about and manage these issues. I look forward to supporting Jamie Strauss and the Digbee team as they work to meet this need by delivering a pragmatic and user-friendly solution.”

Jamie Strauss, Founder & CEO Digbee Ltd, comments “Tom’s achievement in advancing ESG commitment and collaboration amongst the leading mining companies while serving as CEO at ICMM, is widely recognised within the sector and beyond. Digbee is providing an ESG disclosure solution that extends from producers through to exploration companies and we are delighted Tom has joined the Panel with his wealth of knowledge which can now be applied to encouraging the whole sector to positively embrace ESG.

Digbee ESG is an ESG disclosure platform for the mining industry. It offers a future-looking, right-sized set of frameworks, aligned to the key global standards. It is accepted by leading stakeholders, hugely simplifies ESG disclosure and rewards management action.
